These Sprintally Solutions { Azahar } terms of use (“Agreement”) are entered between you, the user (the “Customer”), and Azahar Ahmed (referred to as “Azahar”).

This Agreement regulates the Customer’s use of Azahar that enables him/her to purchase any product or service from Azahar’s online marketplace (the “Service”).

By viewing, accessing or using the Service, or purchasing any product or service available on the Site, you agree to abide by these Terms of Use. Your ability to access and use the Service is conditioned upon your acceptance to comply with this Agreement.

THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS SET OUT IN THIS AGREEMENT APPLY NOT ONLY TO YOUR USAGE OF THE SITE, BUT ALSO EXTEND TO ANY SUBSEQUENT AGREEMENT ENTERED BY AZAHAR OR ITS SUBSIDIARY, TO PROVIDE YOU WITH ANY SERVICE WHATSOEVER.

Should you disagree with any of the terms set out in this Agreement then you may not use, access, or register with the Service.

ETHICAL BEHAVIOR WHILE USING THIS WEBSITE

While using this Service, you are prohibited from engaging in the following activities:

- Breaking of any law, whether regulatory, civil, or criminal by nature, with respect to your usage of the Site
- Engage in activities, whether directly or indirectly, that may be detrimental to Azahar, other users of the Azahar, Azahar’s products, or web site.

Code and password confidentiality

You, the Customer, undertake to maintain strict confidentiality of your user name and related password issued by Azahar to facilitate access to any tool or service which I provide. All information obtained from gaining access to password-protected sites should be treated as confidential by the Customer while using the Service. Should you incur any loss as a result of failing to protect your codes or passwords, I shall hold you solely liable for such a loss.

copyright protection

The contents, products, and services sold on this Site are protected under (india) trademark and copyright law, as well as International Copyright Laws and Treaties. Features such as graphics, text, designs, hyper text markup language (HTML) code, and scripts may not be copied, published or distributed without the express written authority of Azahar Ahmed.

LIMITATION OF LIABILITY

Within the confines of the law, Azahar will not be liable for any loss of data, profits, income, or punitive damages (direct or indirect) incurred by the Customer. Azahar's total liability, including that of its suppliers and distributors, is limited to the amount paid by the Customer for use of the Service to the extent allowed by law. This limitation applies to any implied warranties.

In all circumstances, Azahar and its suppliers and distributors will not be liable for any unforeseeable loss or damage deemed unreasonable.

Cancellation of SERVICES

Azahar holds the right to cancel or suspend access to your account, or any or all of our programs, tools, or services provided on the Site at any time without reference to you. Without prejudice to the foregoing, I may cancel, suspend or limit your access to your Account:

1. if I determine that you have contravened the terms of this Agreement;
2. if I determine that you have infringed on someone else's Intellectual Property Rights;
3. if I determine that you are involved, or have been involved in fraudulent, or illegal practices;
4. if I fail upon request to verify your account details to our satisfaction
5. for reasons which are similar in nature

INDEMNITY

You will indemnify me (and my employees or agents) against any demand or claim leveled against me by a third party resulting from your breach of this Agreement, or contravention of any law or rights of a third party while using the Service or Website.

JURISDICTION AND ARBITRATION

This Agreement shall be governed by and interpreted in accordance with the internal laws of (India). Should both parties fail to resolve a dispute through formally recognized resolution mechanisms (such as an online resolution process), then you and Azahar must irreversibly accept the jurisdiction of the courts of (India)

REFUND POLICY

Please carefully go through my rules on refunds. these rules spell out what you should expect from my products you purchase on this website.

I have an obligation to you, the buyer of his/her product, on this website as the owner of the product.

The rules created here are based on consumer laws which I think from the best framework to govern the transactions that take place on Azahar. However, you should be aware that local laws regarding refunds still apply to you and the rules set out here are therefore not exhaustive.

These rules are designed to enable you know what to expect from me, while giving you some level of confidence in my products.

Outlined below are circumstances under which I expect to give you a refund on a product bought by you on this website.

Product does not conform to the description (“not as described”)

You are entitled to a refund if the product is materially different from the product description or preview on the site, especially when the features and functionality vary with what is promised by me.

Product does not function the way it should

If the product fails to function the way it is supposed to, and cannot be fixed, you are entitled to a refund. If the product is repairable, then I should do so on time by updating it, otherwise you are entitled to receive a refund.

Product is prone to security threats

If the product is rendered vulnerable to a security threat which cannot be easily resolved, then you are entitled to a refund on the product. If the security vulnerability is resolvable, then I should do so on time by updating it, otherwise you are entitled to receive a refund.

Product support is not provided as promised in the listing

If a product is listed as “supported” by me, and I fails to provide support for the purchased product in accordance with Azahar support policy, you will be entitled to a refund.

Product support extension which fails to be used

If you request a refund for a purchased product extension before the existing product support expires you are entitled to a refund of the product's support extension.

Reasons that may cause the buyer not to receive a refund

If a product is essentially similar to the given description, and works as it should (as per the product description in the listing), there is no obligation to give a refund. This situation may arise in the following circumstances:

The buyer no longer wants the product after downloading it

The product does not meet the buyer's expectations

The buyer changes his/her mind for whatever reason

The buyer purchases the product by mistake

The buyer lacks enough expertise to use the product

The buyer is unable to access the product on website because buyer account has been removed for breaking terms of use and policies .
